MAN is essentially a gregarious animal. From time immemorial humans have banded together, actuated primarily by motives of self-preservation. Indirectly, however, such community of interest has resulted not only in the preservation of the existence of the family, tribe or nation, but also in the advancement of culture and learning and in the increase of wealth. Today, in our civilized state, it is not so much the need to preserve our existence that impels us to congregate in towns or cities but rather the desire for learning as a means to economic independence.

The profession of Law, probably more so than any other profession, requires such cohesiveness and yet it is astonishingly true that the lawyer, as an individual, either fails to recognize or refuses to concede the necessity for such community of interest.

With the tremendous increase in the number and extent of legislative enactments and in the decisions of the various judiciaries of the country and its sub-divisions, it is the rankest folly to pretend that a Bar, composed of men disinterested in each other, could successfully cope with the magnitude and complexity of the problems which are continually arising.

The individual who chooses Law as his life work not only owes a duty to himself to conduct his affairs in a manner befitting his leadership in the community which he serves, but what is more important from a practical viewpoint, he owes a duty to his conferees in the profession to maintain the dignity and prestige of the Bar.

Especially is this true in this day of specialization. The specialist in real estate law often requires the assistance of the constitutional lawyer, the negligence expert frequently seeks the help of the expert in medical jurisprudence—in short, the needs of one are so intertwined with the needs of the other that complete independence of action is often impossible.

The right of every lawyer to earn a decent livelihood, in and of itself, is of small moment. It is the fulfillment of that right which is important and such fulfillment can never completely and adequately be realized unless the firm resolve is made by each member of the Graduating Class to keep in mind our unity of purpose, our interdependence and our need for clean and decent practices.

In Memoriam

This book is sincerely dedicated to the memory of

JOHN HOWARD EASTERDAY

As a professor, for his remarkable knowledge of the Law, he commanded our respect,

As a lecturer, for his extraordinary talents on the platform, he earned our admiration,

As the Vice Dean, for his patience and forbearance in his administrative duties, he merited our loyalty, and

As a man, for his human understanding and exquisite appreciation of his fellow men, he won our love.

TO THE CLASS OF 1935

JOHAN LOCKE once said: "A virtuous and well-beloved young man, that is well-versed in the general part of the civil law * * * one may turn loose into the world with great assurance. It would be strange to suppose an English gentleman should be ignorant of the law of his country. This, whatever station he is in, is so requisite, that * * * I know of no place he can well fill without it."

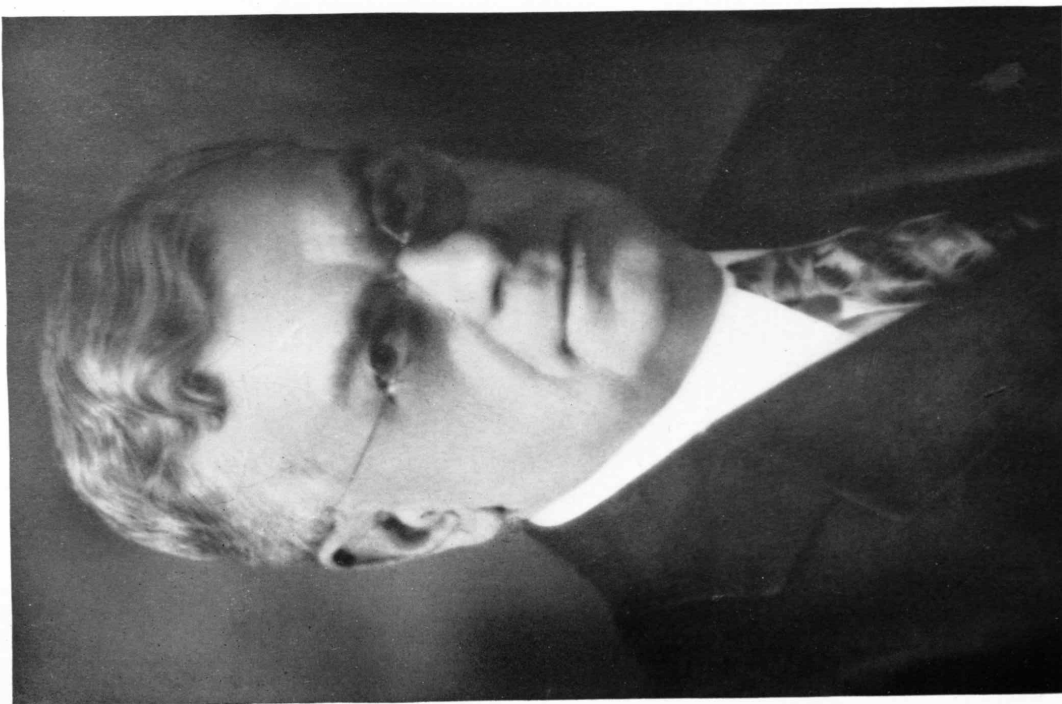

If Locke, the great philosopher and educational theorist, were to step from his Seventeenth Century England into the complexities of our Twentieth Century life, I venture to say that he would give even greater emphasis to the value of the study of the law.

Most interesting would it be to know, following three years of your devotion to law study, your reaction to law as a profession. Before further advancement, may I suggest that you subject yourself to a very thoughtful research involving your convictions as to the difficult and complex problems that inevitably must confront you. Are you willing to dedicate your life to maintaining ethical standards of responsibility, integrity, and unselfish fidelity? Are you interested in community affairs and in human interests? Is your heart in your work? A half-hearted man is a failure everywhere. Has the law given you an inspiration and stimulation for a great purpose? Do you realize that a resolute determination must possess you? Have you an ambition to make a place in the world? Do you realize that, when ambition sags, you lose the force that propels? Are you doing all in your power to accomplish your wish? Are you making personal contacts and attracting people to you? Have you thus far measured your accomplishments? Have you broadened your outlook on life? I urge you to so plan your future study and activities that you will be able to answer these questions affirmatively.

At this time I often find myself looking down the vista of the past and I view in retrospect the many who have left their Law School home year by year. Some of them have become noted jurists, others have reached high positions in large corporations, in business, and in public life, and many have gained distinction in their chosen profession of practice before the Bar. You will soon join them, and I know that we can depend upon you also to uphold the traditions of your profession and of your Alma Mater. Through this altogether too impersonal a medium, I greet each one of you. The law of compensation demands success for the great number of you who have made such great sacrifices to gain your legal education. I wish it for each of you and for every other member of this Class, and I give you, one and all, "God-speed."

William Payson Richardson

WILLIAM PAYSON RICHARDSON

The 1935 Chancellor

TO THE CLASS OF 1935

IN Meinhard v. Salmon, 249 N. Y. 458, Mr. Justice Cardozo, then Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, defined "the duty of the finest loyalty" which "joint adventurers, like copartners owe to one another." He said, "Many forms of conduct permissible in a workaday world, for those acting at arm's length, are forbidden to those bound by fiduciary ties. A trustee is held to something stricter than the morals of the market place. Not honesty alone, but the punctilio of an honor the most sensitive, is then the standard of behavior. As to this, there has developed a tradition that is unbending and inveterate."

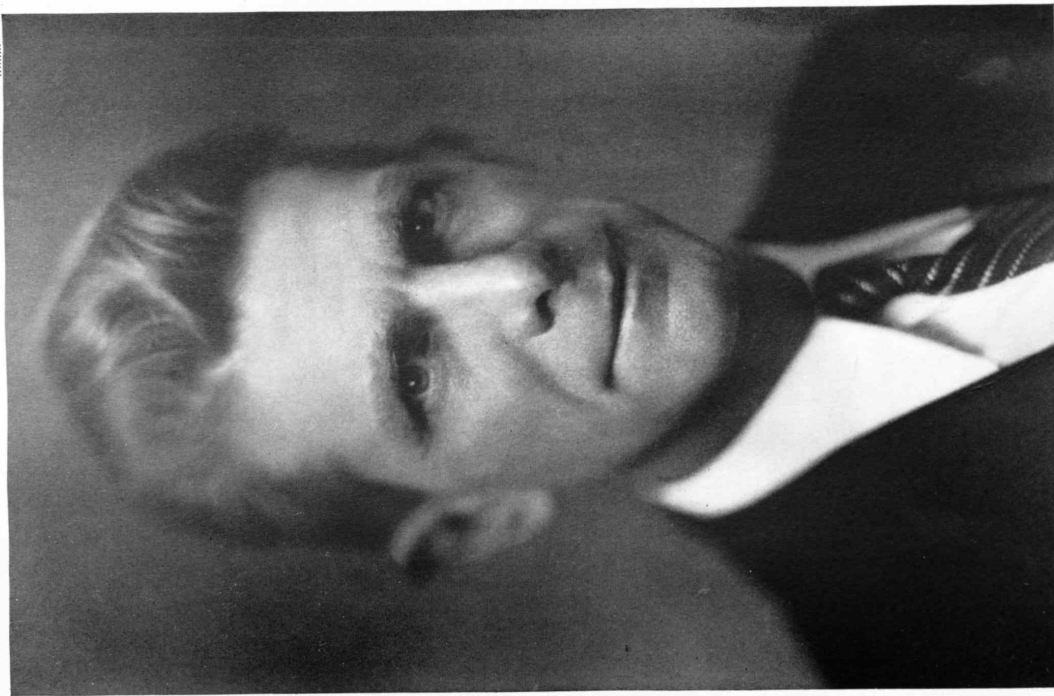

To you I commend a deep study of those words. Lawyers are joint adventurers in the legal profession and, as fellow members of the Bar, are copartners. They are fiduciaries in every sense of the word. They owe the duty of the finest loyalty to the Bar of which they are members and to those who call upon them for advice and protection. Theirs is not a workaday world. The law is a profession. The law office is not a market place.

The trust and confidence which you should inspire, not only in those whom you serve, but also in the courts and in the public at large, can be begotten only by an endeavor to transcend legal technicality in order that justice may be administered. The arduous and concentrated effort which has brought you to this point must not now be dissipated. The momentum thus created must be preserved.

Strive for and maintain an intellectual honesty. Thus, the honor the most sensitive will become your standard of behavior. Then will be rekindled and preserved that unbending and inveterate tradition, viz., the practice of law is a privilege and an honor entrusted to you.

THE OLD CHANCELLOR in bidding you farewell wants you to know that he is depending upon you in the years that are to come, to carry out the eternal principles of right and justice as distinguished from strict law, which he initiated.

My wish for you is that you abandon all counsels of mediocrity for counsels of perfection. It might be said that most lawyers develop by inadvertence rather than by plan. The end determines the route. He who patiently practices for perfection of presentation will eventually be treated with deference.

EDWIN WELLING CADY

The 1935 Chancellor

EDWARD ADOLPH VOSSELER

Upon the successful completion of your law school careers, you are to be congratulated particularly upon the fact that you are about to embark upon the practice of your chosen profession at this flood-tide of opportunity. Profound and radical are the changes now occurring in the law. These, you will be able to accept readily and naturally; whereas the older practitioner, handicapped by accustomed theory and established practices will often experience difficulty of adjustment.

The opportunities are great. I wish you success.

I congratulate you on the successful completion of your law school course. You have completed three trying, arduous years of study, but now at your commencement, and on the threshold of your legal career, you may look back at them with a sense of gratification and prideful satisfaction, as at a task well done. May the years to come, in the field of your chosen profession, be, for you, years of accomplishment and honor, with health, happiness and prosperity.

EDWARD VINCENT DODD

The 1935 Chancellor

ROBERT REUBEN SUGARMAN

As students of the law you have encountered and passed through a stirring period of economic depression. But you are still rich. With less to live on, you certainly have more to live for. The depression has not lowered the value of true friendship. The prayers your mothers taught you and your faith in God still remain as priceless treasures no depression can touch. The greatest glories of life, those which come from sharing and serving, remain secure and unimpaired. The investments made in deserving and ambitious youths in hospitals, in colleges and in service institutions are paying greater dividends than ever before. You are rich because of your experiences and because you are independently rich. None of your wealth depends upon business conditions.

The law school has helped you to attain one laudable objective. It will hopefully await your attainment of the next. May you think clearly, choose wisely, and fight honorably. May you discern the true relation between the rights of the individual and the rights of society. Individual achievement and the social welfare are not necessarily incompatible.

The 1935 Chancellor

GEORGE HAROLD FOLWELL

The members of the Senior Class of the Brooklyn Law School soon will be leaving behind them the theory and speculative debate of the classroom to enter upon the stern realities of the legal profession. That profession is a hard one.

Realizing this fact, as these young lawyers soon will, let them ever keep in mind the apothegm of Jane Austin at the conclusion of one of her novels—

"It's dogged as does it!"

Your degree of Bachelor of Laws merely marks the time when you commence an exertion of the most trying mental, psychological and spiritual efforts of which you are capable; by applying yourselves diligently to hard work, steeling yourselves to unavoidable discouraging set-backs, avoiding temptation to deviate from ethical and honest conduct, and taking advantage of every opportunity to render service. These considerations, plus a fair amount of good luck will make success in the legal profession inevitable.

The 1935 Chancellor

MARKLEY FRANKHAM

Let me wish each of you a most successful career at the Bar—a life in the Law which will bring to you the approbation and praise of your fellow-men as well as the personal consciousness that throughout your professional career you are upholding the highest standards and traditions of the legal profession.

Parting from a class after nearly three years of close association brings a sense of regret. Yet there is pride in your achievements which is justified and a well grounded belief that the future, as yet unrevealed, may be for you full of promise, hope and distinction. In any generation integrity, hard work and fidelity will secure, if not great wealth, then surely comfort, a happy life and the esteem of one's fellowmen.

DONALD FARRINGTON SEALY

RICHARD JOSEPH MALONEY

Congratulations to the members of the Class of 1935, upon the successful completion of their courses. Irrespective of the many rumors to the contrary, never have well-trained men at the Bar been in greater demand than now. Success is bound to come to those who will apply themselves diligently to the task at hand.

As our Country emerges slowly but surely from the chaos of the depression, old and fundamental concepts are being questioned and new ones advocated and applied. Conflict of opinion as to economic and governmental policies exists on every hand. A choice sometimes must be made and a position strongly taken.

Clarity of thought, stability of character and the intelligent exercise of reasoned judgment have never been more needed. Add to them your keeping abreast of current developments, genuine interest in and thoroughness and unceasing industry applied to the task at hand, absolute loyalty to the cause you serve, and above all spotless personal integrity, and you should achieve success in the years which lie ahead.

I find it not unreasonable to believe the prediction of those who assert that in the future we shall enjoy a greater degree of prosperity than we have yet known. In the light of your earlier training and of your background during the last three years, go forward with your heads up and your eyes on the road ahead. There the opportunities lie.

You are indeed to be congratulated upon the successful completion of your law course. I feel certain that your new perspective and vigorous reactions to existing conditions will make you doubly welcome at the Bar.

It will shortly become your duty to foster and advance the dignity and the traditions of a profession regarding which our Court of Appeals has said:—

"The right to practice law is in the nature of a franchise from the state, conferred only for merit" and I feel very certain that this duty is safe in your hands.

THE advent of the class of 1935 into the Law School was unheralded and unsung. Our first encounter with the school proper was in September 1932 when Dean Richardson and our future professors welcomed us. This left us properly impressed, not only with the majesty of the Law, but with the magnitude of the task we had undertaken. For an hour we sat enthralled, listening to statistics on the relation between scholarship and achievement until we felt like the flies in the quotation from Bacon, "Laws are like cobwebs where the small flies are caught and the great break through."

The first weeks were spent trying to mould our class into a consolidated mass. With this in mind, vigorous electioneering for class representatives finally resulted in the election of Jacob Katz, Florence Picker, Lucille Cohen and Salvatore Ciaccio. The campaigning did more than gain its ostensible purpose. It was the first unconscious step in the welding of numerous individualities into a new personality, the 'Class of 1935'.

In the midst of the pressure of daily assignments, our division never overlooked its social duties. Like every enterprising Freshman class, we decided to attempt the seemingly impossible and hold a class dance at the St. George which, in spite of inclement weather, was well attended.

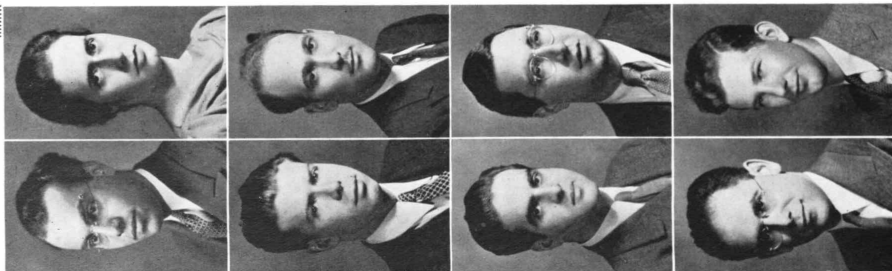

Examinations having taken their inevitable toll, 1933 saw a resumption of class activity on a slightly depleted scale. However, it was soon evident that what we had lost in number was made up by the increased enthusiasm of the class. Campaigning this year, even more spirited than before, awarded the offices of President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer to Philip Smith, Genevieve Finn, Mildred Sater and Benjamin Silverstein, respectively.

In this same year the class held a smoker which was attended by both students and members of the faculty. Later, instead of holding a class dance, we cooperated with the Student Council and many of us attended the dance held in the library.

Upon returning to the Law School in September of 1934 one could not help noticing how many faces were conspicuous by their absence.

Early in the term class elections resulted in the choice of I. Herman Hirsch, Lillian Knorr, Eleanor Link and Mosheh Ayon for class officers.

As the final year at the school draws to a close, we feel that we have reached the zenith of cooperative effort, good will and comradeship.

REMEMBER September, 1932? And the elections? Through what devious means the gods worked to give to the class Hancock for President, Moldofsky for Vice President, Levin for Treasurer and Miss Reiner for Secretary!

The first class affair—at Peter's Tavern. Wine, no women and song, with Ed Fuchs at the piano. What speeches! Hancock's tear jerker about going sans food for weeks (???)—the debate between Finegan and Conroy. And then Sol Salzer did a buck and wing dance—stet.

Then exams—our first—anxious moments—with the results sanity returned and June came up with a rush.

The first year was over and its termination was celebrated with wassail at the St. George Roof—Eli Dantzig's music—Columbia Broadcasting entertainment—and Moldofsky lost his frau in the shuffle. O tempora, O mores—

September, 1933—everybody burned bronze, looking fit and raring to tear into Real Property II, Corporations, etc. etc. Then the bronze faded, Real Property and Corporations remained untorn and the electioneering sneaked up on us. The boys, in their wisdom saw fit to elect Moldofsky, Robbins, Ballin and Miss Reiner for class officers. A lapse of time to become adjusted and then the sensational trial of O'TOOLE v. DORF was held in the Men's Lounge—remember? Who did win that trial, anyhow?

The next class function was the dinner dance at the Hotel Piccadilly—Appelman and his spirits—dancing, while the oncoming examinations haunted us like the w.k. sword of Damocles.

The exams over and the Junior Prom at the Ritz Carlton next occupied our attention. That night the men and women oozed swank; anyhow, they oozed. What a night, what a Prom—ho-hum.

September, 1934. The beginning of the end—the greetings a bit more grave—salutations a trifle more thoughtful—each one determined to plug and eliminate the possibility of any crackup.

Do you remember our first affair that year—an extravaganza at Del Monaco's. Then, the Annual Prom—the crowning event of a full and varied curriculum—at the Waldorf Astoria—Mickey Mouse was resplendent, and he had his own cigarettes—what else could one ask? And yet, the inexorable ticking of the clock on that evening, was a grim reminder, as it is always, that time and tide—

Scholastically, this may be the swan song of the class, but the hope is fervently expressed that the ties cemented by three all too short years of camaraderie will persevere and become even more firm with the March of Time.

HOW new and strange the surroundings were in the opening weeks of the Freshman year! The impressive and dignified first assembly in the auditorium! Those sensations which retrospection can not recapture.

Then came the first elections. Students were hardly acquainted and yet were required to choose their leaders. I. Jules Rosen, with his co-officers, Paul Mauer, Elliott Krause and petite Jennie Axelrod were elected.

Shortly thereafter an informal get-together dance was held at the St. George Hotel. Most of the class were present, with their friends and wives.

A smoker was held in October of 1932. If good cheer and fellowship is a standard, this was a successful gathering. Good beer and crisp pretzels were quite in evidence. A few months later, another smoker was held in the men's lounge. As an inducement for the shy males, a parody on the "Trial of Sadie Thompson" was enacted. By observing the efforts of the participants and the reaction upon those of the faculty who were present, one could easily understand why judges prematurely turn gray.

As a fitting culmination, shortly before the summer vacation, a group attended a boat outing to Indian Point.

Early in September of 1933 the 7-9 and 6-8 Sessions joined forces in holding a most successful Reunion Dance in the Law School library.

With the strangeness of the first year slightly worn, and from the general demeanor of the class, it was obvious that it was ready to settle down to serious work. A very spirited fight in the election of class officers resulted in a signal victory for Rosen as president. With him were chosen Lester Hoening, Harry Venit and Jennie Axelrod.

In December, most of the class joined and supported the informal Student Council dance held in the school library. Individual class activities were thereafter restrained in anticipation of the Annual Prom at the Ritz-Carlton. This class was well represented at the Prom. In order to consummate a pleasant school year, another outing was held to Indian Point.

We returned in September 1934 with a year to go. It seemed to us like a century. Once more Rosen was re-elected as were Krause and Miss Axelrod. Harry Hollander was elected Vice-President.

Another smoker was held in the lounge. The entertainment was long and varied and included an honest-to-goodness magician, who made things disappear—especially the food.

As a class, we now end—as individuals, we leave. May our thoughts in retrospect be pleasant to the same degree as our thoughts in prospect are apprehensive.

THE members of the 10-12 session of the class of June 1936 inaugurated their freshman year with a burst of enthusiasm. They were determined to surpass all records in the Law School, both scholastic and social. As for scholarship the ardor of the group has in no way abated, but the element of gregariousness has not been manifest to any appreciable extent.

The officers for the first year were Morris Naboischek, President; Francis Porot, Vice President; Henriette Schneider, Secretary, and George Dorfman, Treasurer.

The class held two social affairs during their freshman year which, although not adequately supported, were successful.

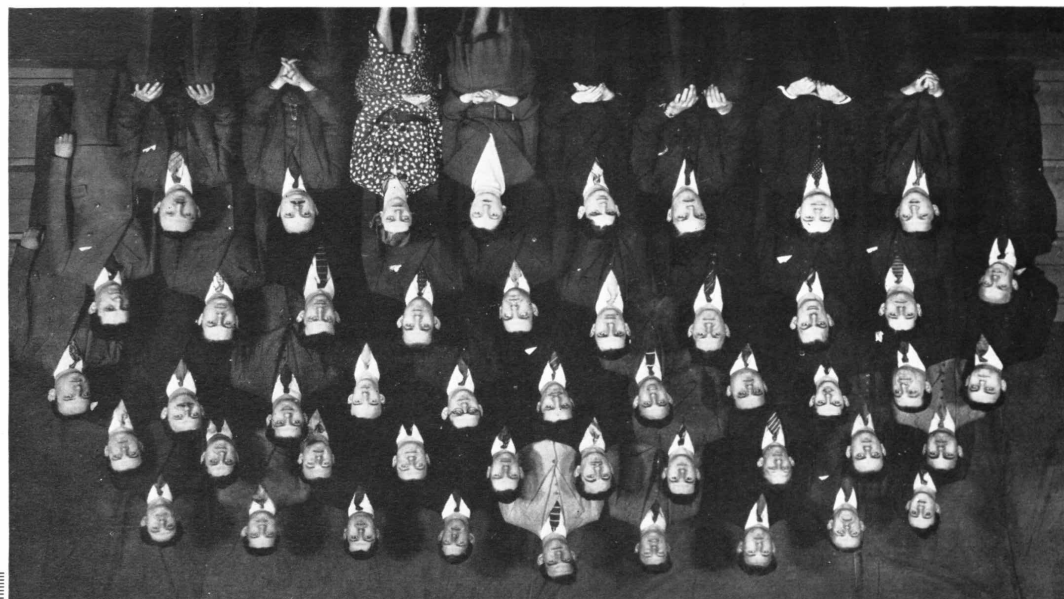

The officers for the second year are Samuel Levitt, President; Philip Benanti, Vice President, and Eleanor Beyer, Secretary. At the time of this writing the office of treasurer is vacant.

The class had perfected plans to run a dinner dance at the Tavern on the Green in December, but because of circumstances not under their control the affair was cancelled.

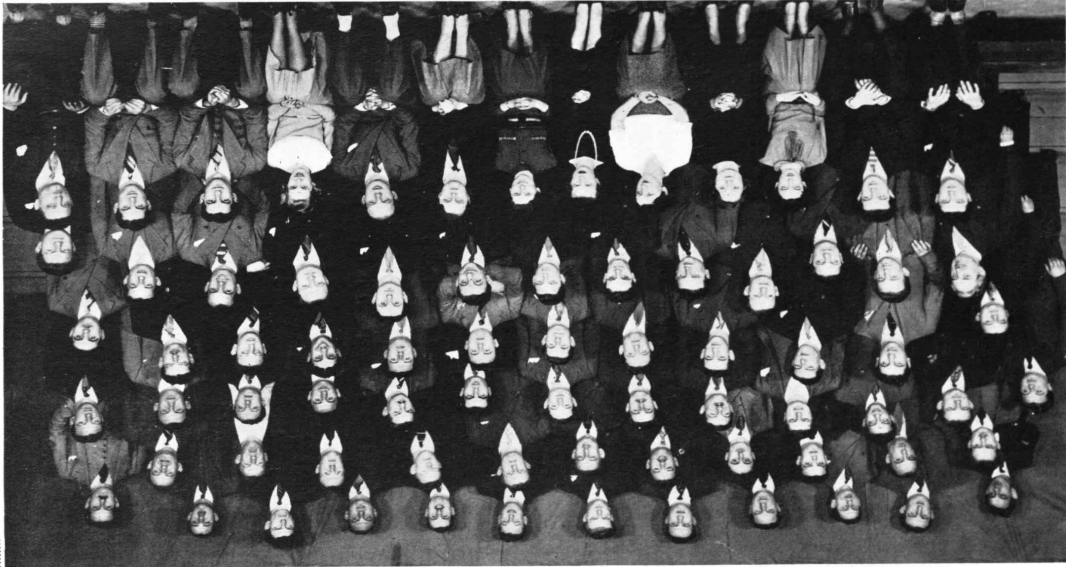

We hope that we may be able to complete our career at the Law School, having realized at least a substantial portion of the goal we have established.

THE history of any particular class is not limited to occurrences in the class room but includes extra-curricular events of a social nature which play an important part in the formation of class fraternalism.

The first week of the academic year was marked by our formal introduction to courses in Equity, Wills and Bills and Notes. From many sources came to us ominous warnings that the latter two studies had a peculiar knack of upsetting scholastic averages, but, as we began them they appeared innocuously innocent. Dr. Godley instructed us in the standardization of the length of the "Chancellor's foot," a most useful item of knowledge; Professor Maloney told us of the posthumous distribution of property; and David Richardson, with gusto and aplomb, attacked the ramifications of negotiable paper. Later, Professor Murphy, with one eye on the aisle seats, began his course in Bailments.

Because teachers are persons, as well as pedagogues, one could write much of the human element in the class room. Dr. Godley was sincerely missed when illness compelled him to abandon the rostrum towards the end of the first semester. Professor Maloney was red-faced and appeared embarrassed when the class expressed to him its appreciation of his instruction—maybe he knew best. David R. took occasion to assure us that he had thoroughly enjoyed his academic relationship with the group. As one might expect, Murphy closed his course with a few choice remarks, quite apropos and in keeping with his reputation as a raconteur extraordinary.

Real Property II, Corporations, Sales and Insurance next claimed our attention. Messrs. Maloney and Murphy, respectively, taught the first two. Professor Hagendorn, energetic and lucid, steered us through the Sales Act, with some slight deviations, and Dr. Cady who typifies professorial dignity to the nth degree and whose understanding is almost paternal, has been teaching us, with impelling vigor, the niceties of distributing losses throughout a group.

What the future holds in store?—perhaps it were better not to know. Where ignorance is bliss—

WITH the coming of September, we returned, somewhat ruefully yet ambitiously, to our studies. The prior year, our initial one in contact with the field of law, had been very pleasantly and interestingly spent. The celerity with which we had developed into a concrete and functioning body was due greatly to the efforts and initiative of our president, George Schneider, who was ably aided by his co-officers, Lillian Zaretsky and Herman L. Zelman.

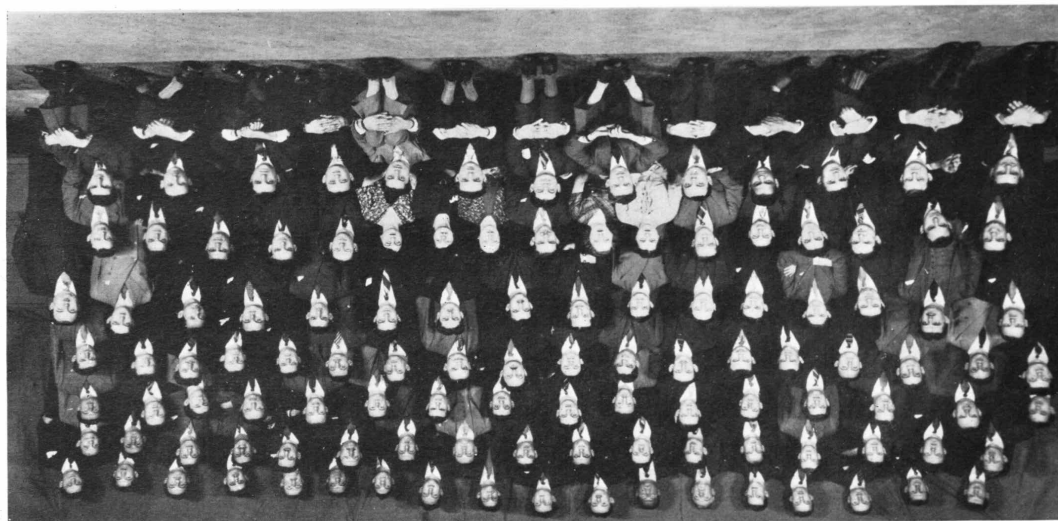

Early in that year, we inaugurated our social activities as a group by holding a very successful dinner and dance at the Henry VIII Club, in New York. A good number of the class attended and did justice to themselves in the good old manner of Henry VIII.

Shortly thereafter, a smoker was held in the lounge of the school building. A novel feature of this gathering was a series of skits which were take-offs of members of the Faculty. Judging by the smiles of the professors who attended, they enjoyed these offerings. One professor became hysterical—he chuckled.

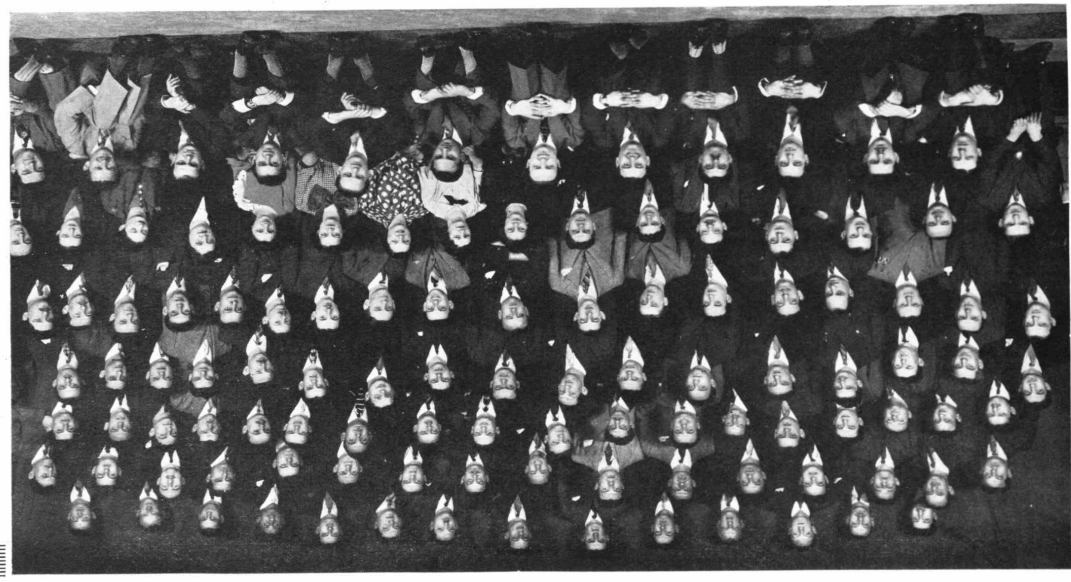

During the Christmas season of 1934, another social gathering was held at the Coconut Grove. The members of the class proved to themselves that, in the pursuit of knowledge, they had not forgotten how to play.

On April 25, a tragic note entered the routine of the classroom in the unveiling of a plaque to the memory of Stanley Klaus, who had met death by drowning during the summer vacation. Vice-Dean Hagendorn spoke eloquently and with feeling. The entire class as well as relatives of Klaus were present. The plaque was later hung in the library.

Happy we are, to have been able to finish the greater part of our journey, yet when we are faced with the fact that next year will be the beginning of the end, we cannot but regret the swift passing of our first two years.

IN September of '33 the 7-9 Session of the Class of '36 first congregated. It was the largest group of the Class of '36, as well as the strongest, numerically, in the Law School. And this, in spite of the repeated warnings that the field of law had more practitioners than the traffic could bear.

Professor Hagendorn set a high standard with regard to energy and ability, and set before us graphic picturizations. Professor Sealy was more sedate, but his patience and thoroughness were admirable, as also was his shy grin, which started slowly, but ended in a half-moon lighting up the scholarly blue of his countenance.

The election of officers found Charles Barasch of The College of The City of New York, President; Frank Sacks became our Vice President; Marion Waener, our Secretary and Dave Yudkowsky, Keeper of the Funds—when, as and if.

Shortly thereafter, Professor Rotwein startled us—beg pardon, started us on a course in Agency. The Xmas holidays which came soon after, found us ready, willing and so, so eager. The first annual supper dance was held on Xmas Eve of '33 at the Village Barn, with its rural atmosphere, olfactorily speaking, and its square dances. More than a hundred couples attended, with Jerry Kirshbaum supervising the festivities and thus was concluded year No. 1.

The 2nd year found the mortality rate much higher—but again the seats were filled from what seemed to be an inexhaustible source. The elections found Charlie Barasch once again Pres., Frank Sacks, V.P., also repeated. Florence Lerner became Sec., and Irv Lebowsky took over the $575—our treasury. Mr. Godley introduced us to the old chancellor, with his stipulated salary of so many cakes and so many goblets of wine per day. The following week brought the 2nd annual supper-dance, held at the Hollywood Restaurant. Messrs. Harry Deutch and Morris Bogash acted as co-chairmen. Another Xmas vacation, another set of exams, a further mortality, and term 2 of year 2 began. The paper dolls Professor Murphy cut from the late slips were the envy of all—including the left-hand jury box. Mr. Gage, of the right-hand jury box, ably assisted Mr. Murphy in his instructions.

Schmukler still came late. Marion Waener became officially engaged. Brotman, with his hand to his head and his pencil to his paper, continued his scratchings. And "Dicta by Dechter" became a by-line. Soon we approached the first of our exams denoting the end of year 2. The results will find some missing in Sept. Others will return, but not to advanced classes. However, those fortunate enough to take the places of the departing class of '35 will be able to look back with satisfaction, and look ahead with assurance, and say "but one to go."

ON September 24, 1934, the members of the first year, morning session, were organized as a class. They were introduced to the study of the law by Professor Wrigley, who delivered the first lecture in Contracts. The same afternoon the students were officially welcomed by Dean Richardson. In a short address, he accented the need for thorough preparation of studies in order to properly digest the intricacies of the Law.

The ability and knowledge of Professors Sugarman, Murphy, Maloney and Prince, joined with that of Professor Wrigley, helped us complete the curriculum for the first year.

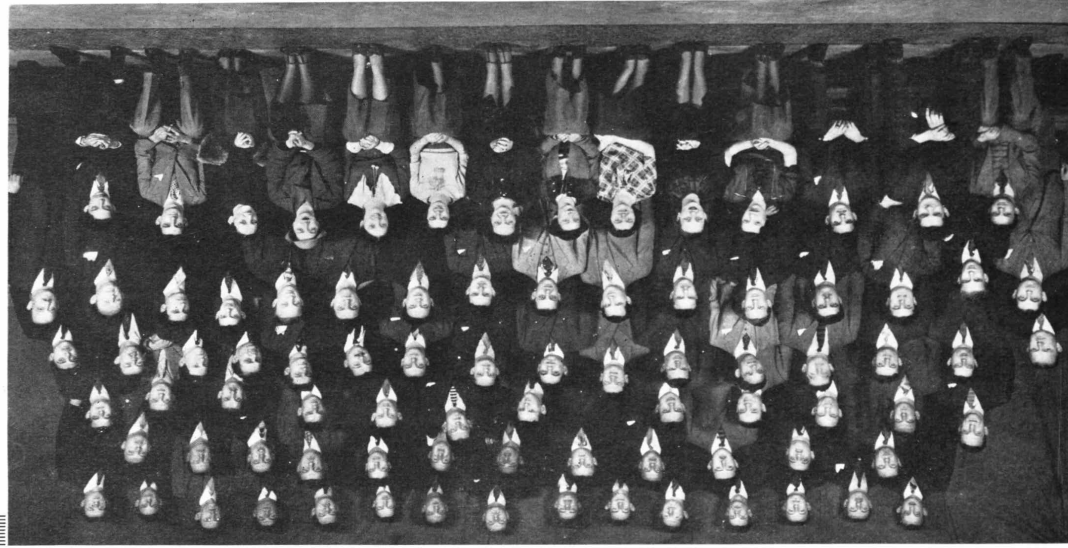

It is of note to observe the many colleges and universities represented by the students in the Law School. They number Brooklyn College, the College of The City of New York, New York University, Long Island University, Columbia University, Cornell University, Dartmouth College, Harvard University, Pennsylvania State College, Wagner College, Seth Low College, Syracuse University, Union College, Buffalo College, University of Texas, Villanova College and Yeshiva College.

The students have participated in the activities of various fraternities and clubs, including Syracuse, Cornell, Brooklyn College, City College, and New York University; Omega Phi and Phi Delta Delta, sororities, and Iota Theta and Phi Delta Phi, fraternities.

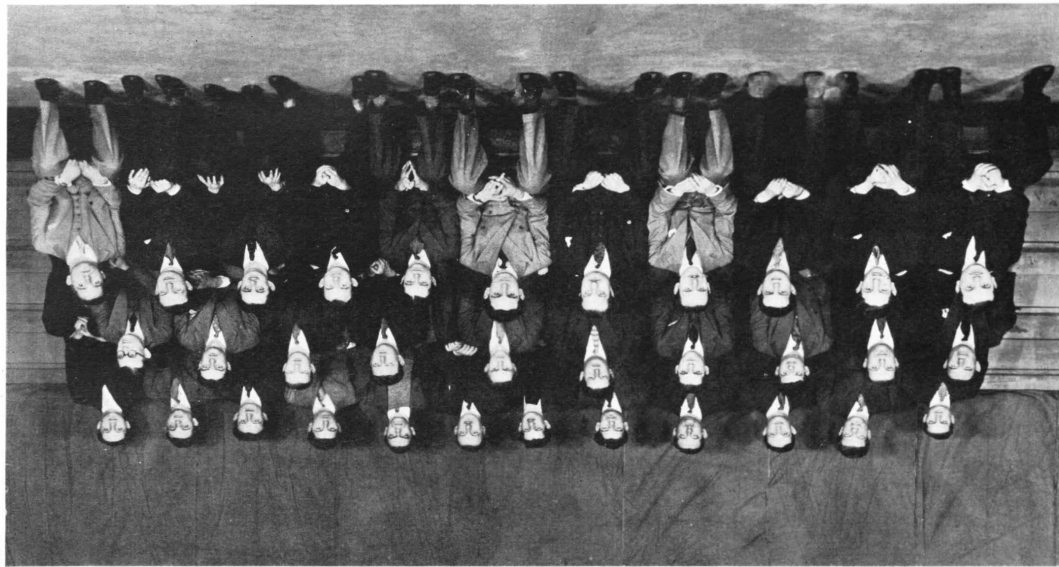

Four members of this year's session were awarded college club scholarships. These were given for competitive activities. The requirements include previous scholastic attainments and adaptability to the law. The members selected were Julius Gremar, C.C.N.Y., Milton Jacobs, Syracuse, Florence Shapiro, LIU., and Max L. Kamenetzky, N.Y.U.

LACKING a history, our class having commenced the study of law only last February, the reader will have to content himself with the observations of the writer, who has striven for strict impartiality.

Upon entering the classroom, one is struck by its close resemblance to a court room. There is a judges bench behind which sits one who, with a bit of imagination, looks like a judge. Quite often, however, as soon as such person becomes animated and audible, the resemblance ceases, and no stretch of the imagination will suffice.

A striking note in the room is the jury box, and here no imagination at all is required to detect a similarity to the jury box in the court room. Allowing their gaze to idly wander over the assemblage, mumbling incoherently to themselves, playing tic tac toe with each other and sometimes locked fast in the arms of Morpheus, the personnel of the jury box can rightly compare themselves with any Blue Ribbon panel in the state.

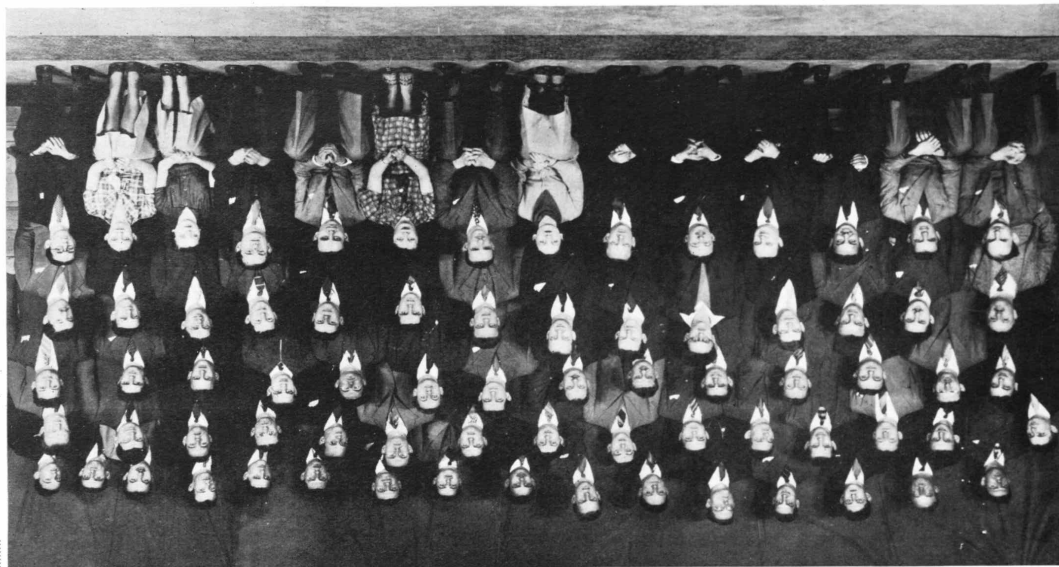

The piece de resistance, however, is the group of students who sit in the main portion of the room. They don't have to come in out of the cold, as do spectators in a court, nor do they have to kill a couple of hours while waiting for a friend, nor are they here to listen to some choice bits of intimate testimony and yet, day after day, these same students come in and sit for two hours. The thirst for knowledge is a wonderful thing.

But, all in all, the situation is not as sad as it would seem. The presence of the fair sex supplies the male members of the class with an incentive to do their best. True, the incentive does not seem to be very strong in some cases, but happily, these are in the minority.

Then, there's the lad in the rear of the room, whose recitations are a source of joy to those of us with a sense of humor. Even the jury stirs somnolently. And the professor permits a fleeting smile to flash across his otherwise solemn visage.

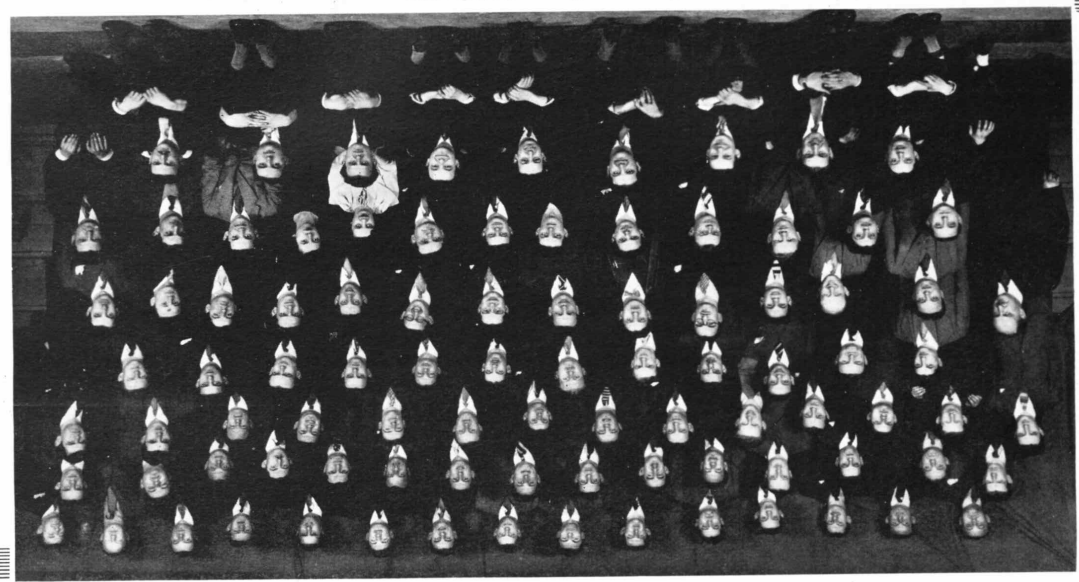

At this point the thought occurs that examinations are given in June. The resemblance to a court room ceases because the uneasy expression evident upon the faces of the students has no counterpart in the faces of spectators at a tribunal.

HAVING finished the first lap of our journey, we pause to reflect upon the scene behind us. And what a host of memories is ours. The first timorous approach to Richardson Hall awed by its stateliness and grandeur, the first lecture, the first view of the library, the soul-chilling first exam, the prom, and the many new friendships. All these made a lasting impression.

Professor Hagendorn initiated us. His genial manner was comforting even though we were warned at the very beginning that the law is a jealous mistress. Professor Sealy expounded the subject of Torts and ushered us into a realm of two white horses, servant girls of doubtful virtue, and pugnacious street car conductors.

Then came the class elections. Exuberant with its newly acquired power the class took its nominating rights seriously, and we had six candidates for each office. Backslapping, handshaking, and promises were at a new high. The results are at the top of the page.

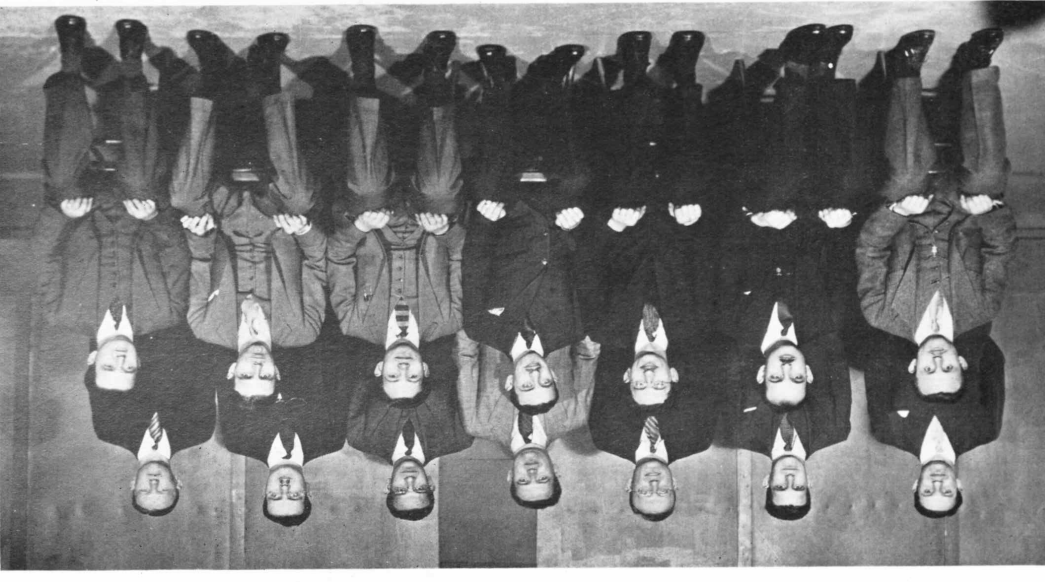

Professor Rowen now entered the scene and with him came youth, humor and plenty of free advice and, of course, some Agency.

The end of the first semester, with its consequent exams, brought a renewal of the zeal that was by this time ebbing low. Study groups were organized, instructors were detained in the lecture rooms after working hours, principles of law were flying about everywhere, and "We met the enemy and we conquered," for very few of us failed to appear in our seats for the second semester. "Joe Lawyer" continued his impromptu orations. The recitations of Pete Garelick continued to be conducive to outbursts of laughter. Ende and Rubin still stayed away every Friday evening, and Douglass I. Siegel still knew it all.

On April 5, we held our first class smoker. Almost the entire class attended. Members of the faculty, including Professors Block, Coffey, Murphy, Purdy, Richardson and Wigley were present and were treated to some unusual dramatic efforts. Their retaliation, especially that of the chief victim, Professor Wigley, was adroit. An interesting feature of the evening was a ventriloquist whose intimate knowledge of class personalities gave rise to a suspicion of a well planned conspiracy.

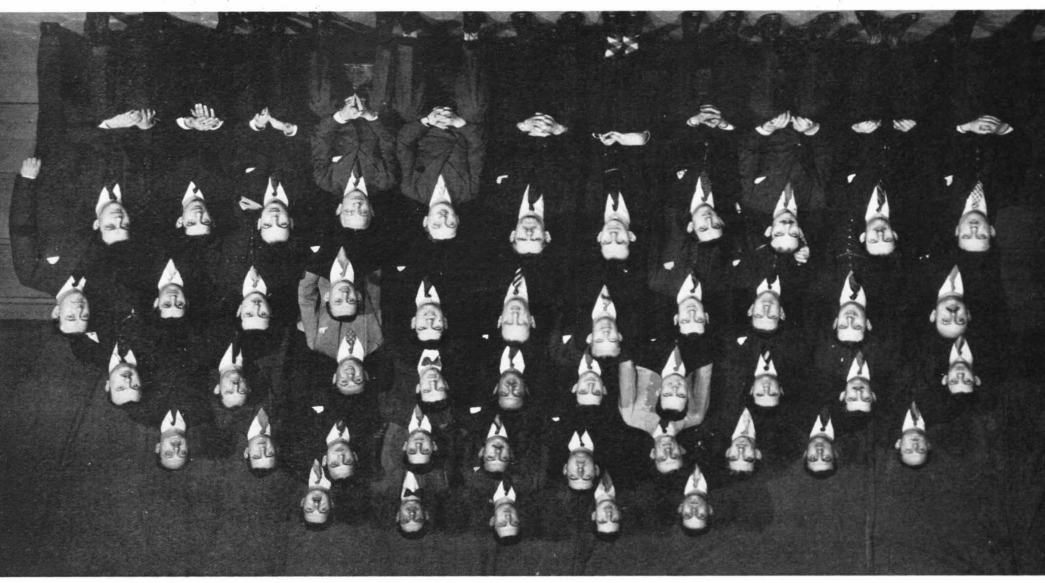

With these memories to sustain us during the coming summer vacation and with much hope for the future, we leave the scene having first made certain that sufficient bond has been posted to secure the safe keeping of our class treasury of eleven cents.

ANENT GRADUATION

(with apologies to Ogden Nash and to the reader)

GRADUATION, O Graduation,

Upon you are bent the thoughts of at least 350 Seniors of Brooklyn Law School and possibly of the Nation.

Although you are to take place in June,

Which is the month of weddings and is also the subject of numerous poems and songs which abound with such words as croon, moon and soon, whereas a more appropriate word would be loon,

You seem so far away and evanescent,

Which is a very sad state of affairs, because no matter how you look at it, such an occasion, coming as it does, once in a life time, and sometimes not even as often as that, should seem very pleasant.

Still we must look facts in the face

And realize that although Graduation may be an evil, and often properly so, still it is a necessary evil, because without Graduation how can we get credit for our three years work in the Law School, and how will we be permitted to take the Bar Examination; in short,
how can we get any place.

The answer, is, of course, we can't,

And attend Graduation we must, no matter how much we may be inclined to rave and rant.

And as a fitting conclusion (at least in my estimation), to this effusion, which has been inspired by thoughts of salutatory and valedictory addresses, and marches down the aisle, and speeches by eminent members of the Bench and Bar, not to mention thoughts of gown and mortarboard,

I charge you not to think of the past but to look forward.

FOUNDED in Brooklyn Law School in 1925 to encourage high ideals of legal scholarship and professional ethics, the Philonomic Council, honorary society of Brooklyn Law School, provides an incentive toward scholastic achievement in the study of law and gives appropriate recognition to those who merit
it. Membership to the Council is limited to members of the senior and post graduate classes who have completed their entire law course at Brooklyn Law School.

The honor of membership is conferred annually upon students who are recommended by the faculty to be of good character and to have achieved distinction in their law studies. New members are initiated and new officers elected at the Council's annual meeting each commencement week.

The Council organized at Brooklyn Law School is known as the Alpha Chapter.

Justice William B. Carswell, '08, Justice of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has been the honorary chancellor of the society since its inception.

LOOKING THEM OVER

June, 1945

LOUIS ALMON (6-8), of Almon, Ruggiero and Kieffer, orders 1,000,000 toothpicks. "Thus," coos Louis, "I always know what's being said, as I have the point at the tip of my tongue. Ha ha."

Seld and Ungar (7-9) are now in the cloak and suit business. "Having found out," whispers Ungar, "that cloak and suiters act as their own lawyers, maybe we'll get more practice that way."

Teichmann (7-9) is now dealing in millions—in the exterminating business.

Sol Salzer (6-8) w.k. professional lease breaker and house hunter has perfected a new laugh. "My new laugh has curdled milk at a distance of 100 yards," chortles Sol.

Henry Zinnel (6-8) expects to be graduated from Brooklyn Law School shortly. "I have passed the pleasant years of most of my life at the school," paraphrased Henry.

Kermit D. Ballin (6-8) editor and man about town, who recently startled the country with his essay, "Shall we Tolerate Nudism in the Turkish Bath?" is still militant. "I intend to clean up the entire situation before it results in a washout," spouts Ballin.

Spiegel (7-9) is unhappy lately. He works in a restaurant for his meals and has lost his appetite.

Kaplan (7-9) is now claimed by two states, New York and New Jersey. New York claims he comes from New Jersey and New Jersey claims he comes from New York.

Al Levin (6-8) is again planning to take the Bar Exam. "If at first—you know," sighs Al.

Moldofsky (6-8) President of the Not So Young Folks and Secretary of the Chevre Bnai Zeta Society, is now again on home relief.

Harold Robbins (6-8) is now on the bench—in Bryant Park.

Bill Reid (4-6), Mayor of Pearl Street, is still advocating the laissez faire theory. "Everything will be all right," soothes William.

Ed Hancock (6-8), who has been hailed as a second Floyd Gibbons, will engage in a three cornered debate with Stepin Fetchit and one of the lions on the steps of the Public Library. "I expect some tough opposition, but I'll still be on my feet and going strong when my opponents have folded up," prophesies Hancock.

Pulliam (4-6) is now pinch hitting on the Amos and Andy hour.

John Conroy, of Conroy and Finegan (6-8) is sponsoring a slumber hour over the radio. Glatzmaier, (7-9), their announcer, will speak on "How to fall asleep at the sound of the gong."

Leonard Golditch, (6-8) who recently committed to memory Corpus Juris, may now be reached at Islip, Long Island. He is expected to be there for some time.

The Duchess (6-8, 4-6, 10-12, 7-9, etc.) noted writer, when asked about her latest effusion, remarked, "It must have been pretty bad. The editor had to rewrite it before he tore it up."

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

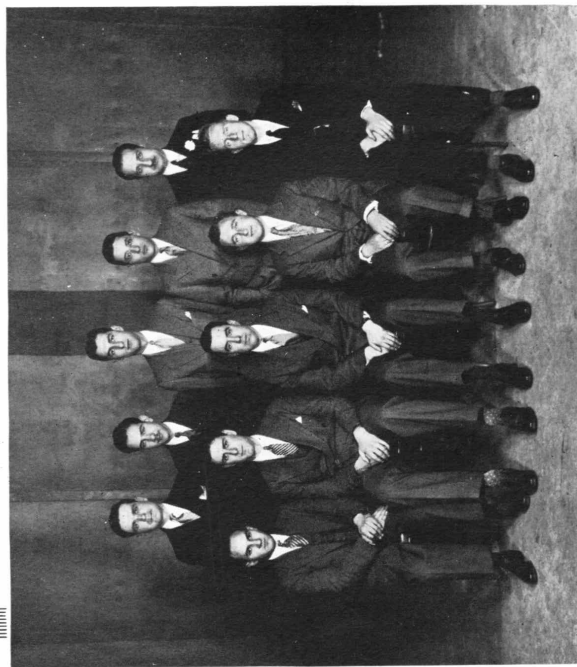

ELEVEN years ago the presidents of the several classes, in order to bring to fruition a plan to unify the activities of the classes and undertake new functions which, of necessity, demanded coordination, set up the Student Council of the Law School.

Composed of the presidents of each class as an assurance of universal representation, the Council, during its life of more than a decade, has more than justified the purposes for which it was created. Not only, as in the past, has the Council held its Annual Prom, in which the entire student body participates and which, this year, was the most ambitious and successful affair of its kind held, but this year, in contradistinction to the practice which has heretofore prevailed, the Chancellor, the annual senior publication, has been under the jurisdiction of the Council under the immediate supervision of a Board of Editors composed of the four senior presidents.

Started last year, the Council's practice of maintaining a schedule of the social events of the various college clubs and other undergraduate organizations, in order that there would be no conflict between two or more events so insuring the maximum attendance at all functions, has been followed this year with complete success and concord.

As a further assurance of its willingness to take the college clubs under its aegis, the Council has extended an invitation to the Interclub Council to send a representative to sit in at its meetings. This practice has met with the approbation of the extra-curricular organizations of the Law School and by the administration as well.

Being composed of the chosen representatives of each class, the Council has, during its existence, numbered men who showed potential promise of leadership, of whom a good number today are recognized as leaders in their chosen profession. It is hoped that the members of the Council will continue to thus prove their right to such leadership.

SCENE I. FADE IN:

(On Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, Camera pans over to doorway and doorman, dressed as Rear Admiral, is seen refusing tip from OUR HERO as he escorts THE GIRL FRIEND into the lobby.)

OUR HERO

"Well, I never!"

THE GIRL FRIEND

(Dazed) "Me neither."

SCENE II. CLOSE UP:

(OUR HERO is at the ticket desk of the Ballroom and with a sickening smile is fumbling in all his pockets, except one, for his admission ducats.)

SCENE IV. CLOSE TWO-SHOT:

OUR HERO and THE GIRL FRIEND are sitting at a table.

THE GIRL FRIEND

"I'm too tired to dance now. Who is that handsome man there?"

OUR HERO

"That's Professor Rowwein. He rattled off the whole Agency course in one hour flat."

THE GIRL FRIEND

"Is he married?"

OUR HERO

(Looking slightly nettled) "I don't know. Look, there is Professor Wrigley, Snappy dancer, no? A regular waltz fiend."

THE GIRL FRIEND

"Is he married?"

OUR HERO

(Crestfallen) "I don't know. Do you see that chap? No, not the one with the pained expression—he's a prof. I mean the one with the white tie. Huh, thinks he's a big shot because he's wearing tails. I wish I had a nickel for every time I whispered answers to him when he was called on for a case. Now, he won't say hello to me. I hope his shirt works up and chokes him. And say, there's Professor Maloney."

THE GIRL FRIEND

"Is he married?"

OUR HERO

(Baffled—but with his fingers clutching at an imaginary slender, white throat) "I don't know."

THE LAW REVIEW

THE publication of the May issue of the Brooklyn Law Review brought to a close another chapter in the history of a periodical which has steadily grown in value to the bench, the profession and the student body since its inception in April, 1932. Particular changes which deserve mention are publication quarterly throughout the academic year instead of the former semi-annual distribution, thus more readily permitting the inclusion of current matter, and the adoption of the uniform system of citation.

That the Review has made for itself a place in the field of legal publications despite its comparative youth becomes apparent when one considers the list of authors of the leading articles. Among these have been the Hon. Edward R. Finch, Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, who discussed progress in procedure, Perlle P. Fallon, Esq., whose topic was "Lessors as Creditors in Bankruptcy," Dr. Felix S. Cohen, writing on "Modern Ethics and the Law," Osmond K. Fraenkel, Esq., who discussed the taxing power of the states, Mrs. B. Gurnee Bonomi, co-author of Carmody's New York Practice, who wrote on "Effect of Separation Agreement upon Wife's Rights to Deceased Husband's Estate," Professor John Gerdes of the New York University School of Law, whose topic was "Jurisdiction of the Court in Proceedings Under Section 77B," and Professor Walter J. Fried of the graduate school of the Brooklyn Law School, who discussed the effect of the new section on real estate reorganizations.

The names of authorities in particular fields of law have consistently appeared in the book review department as well. Among these were Professor William Seal Carpenter of the Princeton University Department of Politics, Professor Francis Deak of the Columbia University School of Law, George Z. Medalie, former United States Attorney, Jay Leo Rothschild, Professor John Hanna of the Columbia University School of Law, Professor John Barker Waite of the Michigan University School of Law, Professor Joseph H. Beale of the Harvard University School of Law, William Shankland Andrews, Professor Hugh E. Willis of the Indiana University School of Law.

With the publication of its fifth volume in the Fall, the Law Review will have closed its formative stage, to which student editors Jerome Prince and Alexander E. Cymrot have so notably contributed.

THE JUSTINIAN

INITIATIVE and an improvement in appearance have marked The Justinian during the past academic year. Nine issues, including the commencement issue, have appeared; more than during any of the three previous volumes. The first Summer Commencement of the law school was recorded in full detail and copies of the newspaper were distributed to those attending. With the October issue, a series of typographical changes were begun which have resulted in an appreciable revision of format.

The policy was inaugurated of publishing feature articles written by staff members and, in addition, contributions were secured from the profession and from law school faculties.

The Justinian sponsored a campaign for the establishment of a new juvenile court, which influenced the setting up of the Adolescents' Court early this year. Judicial reforms, both criminal and civil, were supported and analyzed by the newspaper; some of these being presented in the form of symposiums. But legal news and articles have not been presented to the exclusion of school news, for complete coverage has been afforded to the reader as to the alumni of Brooklyn Law School, the administration, the faculty and the students.

Glancing through the files, one will discover many interesting items. "Judicial Advice to the Graduating Class of 1934," for example, was written by Associate Justices James C. McReynolds and Benjamin N. Cardozo of the United States Supreme Court and the late Chief Judge Cuthbert W. Pound and Associate Judge Leonard C. Crouch of the New York Court of Appeals especially for those who received their degrees a year ago.

The opposition of bench and bar to the filming and broadcasting of litigation, a debate between Messrs. Battle and Goldman on the benefits of a public defender, and a summary of the American Bar Association's radio series, "The Lawyer and the Public," are recorded. Professor Wigmore's article on St. Ives, the lawyer's patron saint, appeared in the November issue. Federal decisions, including those of the United States Supreme Court, received notice and comment.

Forward the newspaper has gone in many respects. Its influence has been extended by being quoted in newspapers throughout the country, and through citation in legal periodicals and texts.

As a monthly venture, The Justinian has required from its staff members constant co-operation, and it welcomes this opportunity to acknowledge their services.

HAVING GROWN from a mere handful in its inception to several score in membership, the City College Club enjoyed the most successful year of its existence under the guidance of its faculty advisor, Professor Robert R. Sugarman and its president Elliott Krause. The activities engaged in were varied. There were talks on vital questions of legal and personal interest by such speakers as Joseph A. Shea, internationally known criminal lawyer, who spoke on "Personal Experiences at the Bar," Assistant Federal District Attorney Daniel Gutman who discussed "Crime and Legal Reforms," Harvey I. Harris who suggested methods of "Problems Analysis," and our own Professors Richard J. Maloney, James L. Murphy, Jerome Prince, David A. Richardson and Robert R. Sugarman who addressed the club informally. Edmund Preiss, a member, enlightened the club on "Legal Phases of Finance Companies" and Theodore Becker conducted a question and answer session on "How to Look Up the Law" at one of the meetings.

At the annual Smoker arranged by Charles Greenberg and Benjamin Schiff of the Entertainment Committee the more social talents of the club members were made manifest. With Joseph Tucker, imported for the occasion, leading the way with a humorous monologue were David Bermitz, Reuben Schreiber and Jerry Selter, who followed with hilarious skits and impersonations of invited faculty members. Music was supplied by Sidney Mielman who gave a violin solo and Solomon Feld and Murray Landman who rendered vocal selections.

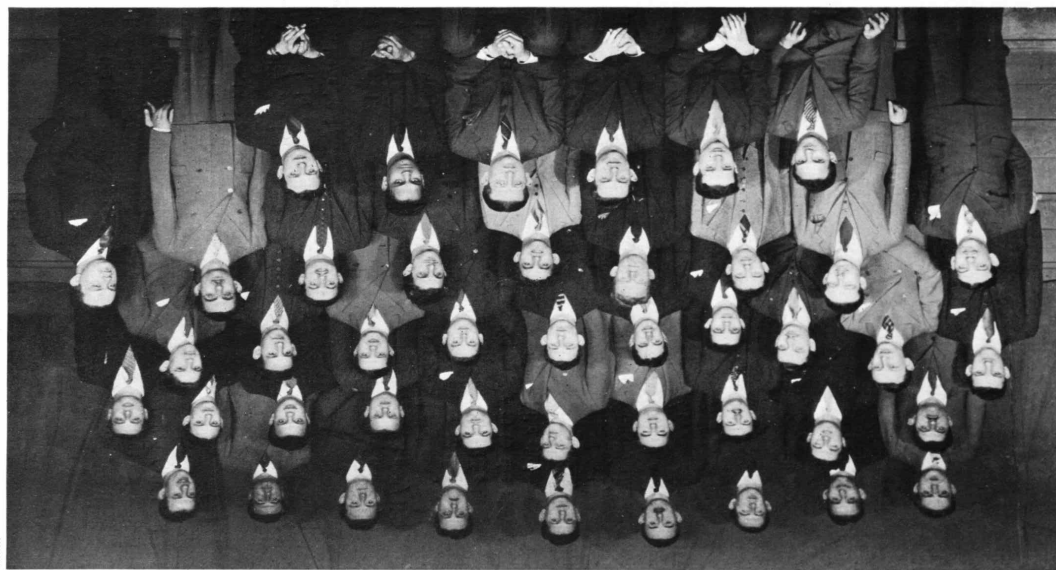

The year so full of interesting activity will be brought to a close with the annual dinner in June.

FROM A MODEST beginning in 1932 the membership of this club was considerably increased. In order to carry out the express purpose of this club in fostering good will and fellowship, it was proposed to award scholarships to deserving students. After due deliberation and inquiry, the Scholarship Committee selected Harry Deitch, Sam Samuels, Asher Ende and R. Maurice Morton to receive the scholarship.

Among the guest speakers at the forums and smokers conducted by the club in the past year were Dr. Louis Warsoff of Brooklyn College, who spoke on the advantages and disadvantages of the jury system. Professor James Lawrence Murphy, of the Law School, discussed the problems of the law school graduate. Professor David Richardson spoke on political organization. Assistant District Attorney William McCarthy, gave a version of actual crime detection. Mr. Daniel Gutman, United States Assistant District Attorney, emphasized the necessity of cooperation between the citizen and law officers to stamp out crime.

THE CORNELL UNIVERSITY CLUB commenced its second year of activity at the Law School under the guidance of the following charter members: David Becker, Jason R. Berke, Ira Halpern, and George J. Talanoff of the senior class and Miss Gladys Dorman, Mrs. Rose M. Fishkin, Alfred B. Leventhal, Edward J. Mintz, and Miss Henrietta Schneider, second year students. Membership was augmented by the addition of four new members, S. Harold Amerling, second year, and the following first year men; Keith E. Angell, Murray Kalik, and Arthur A. Stein.

The first meetings of the club were spent interviewing applicants for the club scholarship. The recipient named was Arthur A. Stein.

Acknowledged different from the usual business meetings and smokers held was a cocktail party tendered at the home of Mrs. Rose Fishkin, secretary. The occasion was the recent betrothal of George J. Talanoff.

Election of officers for the succeeding year and formulating of plans for coming semesters will occur at the final meeting to be held sometime in June.

THE HUNTER COLLEGE CLUB, founded in 1932, is composed of former students of Hunter College. Since its inception, the Club has been one of the most active organizations in the Law School. Although it stressed the social and cultural viewpoints at its meetings from an extra-curricular point of view, yet the members of the Club devoted themselves intensely to extra-curricular activities of a purely legal nature, as well.

The Misses Axelrod, Satler and Kreppel are members of the Senior Class and expect, at about the time this book is published, to be embarked on their chosen career in the Law.

THE N.Y.U. CLUB was formed in Brooklyn Law School during the fall semester of 1932, under the direction of Professor A. Rotwein for the purpose of renewing associations made at New York University and the fostering of new associations between former students of New York University.

During the three years of existence of the Club, there have been smokers and dinners at which Professors and outstanding attorneys have been guest speakers. One of the primary functions of the club has been the annual visit to the Magistrate's Court as guests of Chief Magistrate James E. MacDonald.

During the past year, the club has been favored by talks from David Marcus, Deputy Commissioner of Correction and Professor Russell, a member of the Graduate Faculty.

The club awards two first year scholarships each year to incoming students of New York University. The recipients this year were Lester Klepper and Max L. Kamenetzky.

NOT CONTENT to restrict its activities to the Law School, the Union College Club, during the past academic year, has participated in affairs of the college as well, including the induction of Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox, Union's twelfth president, and the annual dinner of the New York Alumni Association. During the month of June, the members of the club will meet at their Alma Mater in Schenectady, to award the 1935-36 club scholarship.

The program for the new school year was outlined on October 10th when the club held its first meeting. A month later, the group held a dinner at which they heard a symposium on the problems and possibilities facing the young lawyer. Dr. Edwin Welles Cady ('92), senior member of the faculty and club advisor, James E. Finegan ('02), President of the Municipal Civil Service Commission of The City of New York and Abraham M. Auerbach, an alumnus of Brooklyn Law School, led the discussion.

"Choosing a Jury" was the subject of a forum conducted by Ernest Ellwood ('05) on December 11th, 1934 and at a more recent meeting the club heard William B. Jaffee ('26) trace the legal problems of the motion picture industry.

LATE IN THE SECOND semester of 1933, a group of students at the Law School, interested in preserving the traditions of Lehigh University at Brooklyn Law School, organized the Lehigh University Club.

Although the membership is limited to those students who attended or received degrees at Lehigh University, the club has been active since its inception. Regular meetings are held, at which matters of general interest to law students, as well as University matters are discussed. These are supplemented by occasional dinners, purely social in character.

THE GAVEL, at the termination of its first year of existence, feels a justifiable pride in knowing that it has effectuated, in great part, the original purposes for its being. Created with the object of providing a means whereby the social, educational, and cultural extra-curricular opportunities of the Law School could be realized, The Gavel has, during the past year, participated in and encouraged just such opportunities.

It has, in a program of fortnightly Supper Meetings held at the Hotel Pierpont, been able to more closely associate itself with the Faculty of the Law School, several of whose members have been guests of honor at these meetings.

An essential feature of its function has been to act as a representative group of the Law School. It sincerely feels that it has been able to successfully foster friendships and develop a kinship among its members. It has striven to actually give the student of mature mind and practical outlook a medium of activity and expression. In reviewing the past year the members of The Gavel confidently feel that the group has significantly achieved material value from its organization.

The Gavel eagerly anticipates the coming year as an opportunity for it to enlarge its scope and considerably increase its beneficial influence.

ENTERING upon the second year of its existence, the Inter-Club Council, formed in March 1934, has more than fulfilled the expectations of its organizers. Founded with the purpose of adding unity to the activities of the various college clubs in the school, not only of cooperation in the choice of dates for meetings, but also in the attendance of each organization at speaker's forums held by the others, it has successfully achieved these ends.

The interchange of ideas relative to the type of meetings scheduled has resulted in a varied and, therefore, more interesting program of events sponsored by the college clubs during the past year.

The Inter-Club Council has been granted the use of the College Club Room, which is open throughout the day to members of College Clubs. Containing a bulletin board and racks filled with college periodicals supplied by the individual clubs, this room is a favorite meeting place, providing an opportunity on the one hand for more frequent meetings of fellow club members and contact with news of "alma mater" and on the other for a wider acquaintanceship with members of other clubs.

PHI DELTA PHI FRATERNITY, EVARTS INN, founded in 1904 has had a long and varied history and has been an important factor in the student life of the Law School.

During the past year, Phi Delta Phi held two successful smokers in October, 1934. Among those present were Vice-Dean Hagendorn and Professors Purdy, Maloney, Frankham and Richardson.

The Annual Initiation was held at the Kings County Surrogates Court on February 16th and thirty men became members of the Inn. The initiation ceremonies were followed by a banquet at the Crescent-Hamilton Athletic Club. Professors Cady, Richardson, Vosseler, Frankham, Wrigley and a good many of our more recent alumni attended. The guest speaker was Frederick Van Zandt, prominent trial attorney.

IOTA THETA has completed a varied, entertaining and instructive year and the members and graduates may reminisce and recall with particular enjoyment Professor Murphy and his Smokers, the New Year's Eve dinner dance, the Initiation Banquet and numerous meetings and informal gatherings.

New Year's Eve the boys shed the shroud of the Law (for the evening only), donned evening attire, danced to the music of a popular orchestra and rubbed elbows with many graduate Iota Thetans. All this took place at the Hotel Westover.

The word "Smoker" will always have a familiar connotation to the members and their many friends because one immediately associates with the Smokers held during this past year the name of our amiable and respected Professor Murphy. Thanks to Professors Murphy, Block, Rotwein and many other members of the faculty, the Smokers were eminently successful.

The regular meetings, held the first Sunday of each month, featured speakers on topics of current legal interest. Percy Friedman, a founder of the Fraternity, and still very active in Fraternity affairs, gave a series of talks on patents and trade marks.

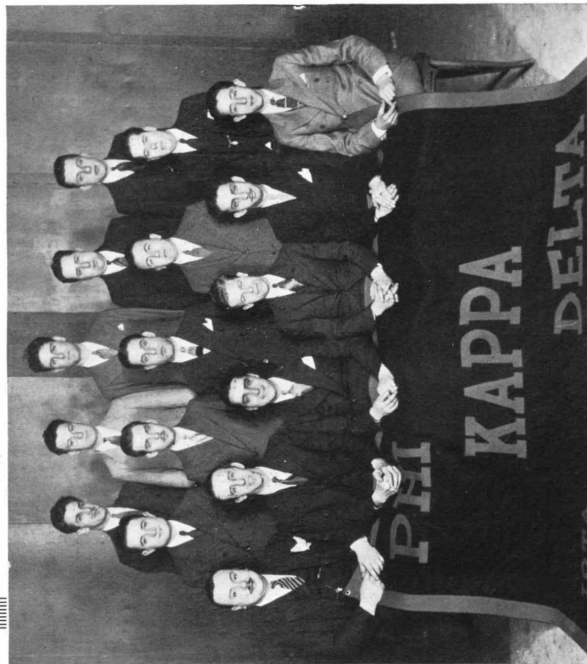

On February 22nd, sixteen pledges were given the oath of the Fraternity by Frater Professor Cady, at the fraternity banquet held at Leon's Restaurant. Professor Bachrach, Percy Friedman and many others addressed the boys. The Spring dance and the June initiation and banquet wound up a pleasant year.

PHI KAPPA DELTA celebrates its twenty-first birthday this year, having been founded in 1914. The desire of the founders to instill a genuine spirit of brotherhood has been fulfilled throughout the existence of the fraternity.

Iota Chapter has made great strides since its inception and its present commodious quarters on the main floor of Richardson Hall provide suitable facilities for both study and relaxation.

Although a legal fraternity has less opportunity to indulge in social functions than has a college organization, yet Iota has successfully managed to present many functions during the past year. Smokers were tendered to the newcomers in October and February. Many excellent men were pledged and subsequently became permanently affiliated with the chapter. The success of both the Fall and Spring dances was gratifying. In the preparation of their studies the fraters formed review groups for their various courses and attained uniform success in their examinations.

To those fraters who will receive their degree in June, we say—Godspeed!

DELTA THETA PHI, since it results from three fraternities, has three founding dates. Delta Phi Delta was founded in 1900 at the Cleveland Law School of Baldwin Wallace College, Cleveland, Ohio. Alpha Kappa Phi was founded in 1902 at Northwestern University, Chicago, Illinois, and Theta Lambda Phi was founded in 1903 at Dickinson College, Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

The three original fraternities amalgamated to form Delta Theta Phi at the Hotel La Salle, Chicago, Illinois, in the year 1913. Since that time its senates, or chapters, have been established in all the leading schools of law in the United States.

The primary purpose of this fraternity has been to instill in the mind of the law student his duty, as a lawyer, to society and to fellow members of the profession. High scholastic standing has always been encouraged and rewarded.

The social activities consist mainly of banquets and dances. The Alexander Hamilton Senate, located in Brooklyn Law School, has not given a dance for the past two years, but the members are pleased to announce that arrangements are being completed for a dance to be held coincident with graduation.

GAMMA CHAPTER, of Brooklyn Law School, which was chartered in 1927, opened its 1934-35 school year with a smoker on October 19th, in its new quarters. On November 10th, the first initiation saw the induction of four new fraters. Thanksgiving Eve was celebrated by the entire fraternity at the St. Moritz Hotel and Christmas Week was devoted to a Convention, which ended with a supper dance on New Year's Eve.

In February, 1935 six new fraters were admitted, and on March 10th, four fraters came into this chapter. To properly welcome the new men, a smoker was held on March 22nd in the Lounge of the Law School at which Vice-Dean Hagendorn and Professor Murphy spoke.

ON OCTOBER 7TH, Pan Hellenic's 1934-35 season opened with its time honored inter-sorority Tea, the first formal welcome to Brooklyn Law School's incoming women students. This occasion each year not only inaugurates the sororities' Fall rushing, but this year marked also the induction of new officers. Immediately following this ceremony, Phi Delta Delta was presented with the Pan Hellenic Scholarship Cup by Miss Eleanor L. Curnow. This trophy is awarded each Fall to the sorority whose student members shall have maintained the highest average for the preceding year.

The regular bi-monthly meetings in the College Club Room were unusually well attended this year, evidenced by the fact that not one sorority was penalized for the non-attendance of its representatives. Indeed, several of the meetings saw an influx of many who were not delegates to Pan Hellenic, but who were interested in Council activity.

The outstanding achievement of the year was the redrafting of the Pan Hellenic Constitution. With the very kind support and financial assistance of Dean Richardson, and the enthusiastic help of Miss Curnow, the representatives were able to have the constitution printed in handbook form.

March 3rd marked the opening of the mid-season rush period for the sororities. Old and new students met at a very informal tea in the Women's Lounge. In keeping with the spring-time weather, Miss Curnow spoke briefly on the importance of balancing working hours at the Law School with plenty of play time hours, and suggested that the best way for the girls to fully enjoy their three years here would be to have some outside interest or hobby to which they could turn after their studies were completed.

PHI DELTA DELTA, was founded for the avowed purpose of promoting the highest standards of professional ethics and culture among women in law schools and in the legal profession. From the date of its inception on November 11, 1911 at the University of Southern California, the sorority has expanded until it has established fifty-six chapters throughout the country with associates in foreign countries as well. Phi Delta Delta is a member of the Women's Professional Pan-Hellenic Association to which Dean Eleanor Curnow is the Chapter's representative.

Nu Chapter was the first to be formed in the metropolitan area and was formed in the Brooklyn Law School in 1922. Thereafter chapters were installed at Fordham University, New York University, Columbia University, St. John's University and the New York City Alumnae Chapter was established.

In September, Nu Chapter opened the current year with a formal initiation and banquet at the Granada Hotel at which time five new members were initiated into the sorority. Two more banquets were given during the year, the first on Founder's Day at the Women's City Club, and the second at Theresa Worthington Grant's upon the occasion of the visit of the national president, Miss Florence Selander. The Spring "rush" party consisted of a Cocktail party held at the home of Mrs. Muriel Paul and attended by most of the members. The Chapter's newly acquired room was the scene of the pledge service in March at which time Mrs. Janet Sanborn and Miss Dorothy Legenhause were pledged.

GAMMA CHAPTER of the Iota Alpha Pi Sorority, organized at the Brooklyn Law School in 1920, has just completed its fifteenth successful year of activity. In cooperation with the National Organization, which since its inception in 1903, has conducted a Student Loan Fund for the aid of those college and professional school students who find it necessary to seek financial assistance in order to continue their professional studies, Gamma Chapter has conducted a series of social affairs during the past school year which have been highly successful both as social events of prominence and as instrumentalities in raising funds for the Loan Fund.

On November 4, 1934 a bridge party was held at the Fraternities Club Building; on December 22nd to the 24th the chapter took part in the 32nd Annual Convention held at the Hotel Astor; a theatre party at a popular comedy proved highly successful on February 15, 1935; and the Hotel Ambassador was the scene of the annual Spring Dance on May 4th which climaxed the social season.

Ambitious plans in regard to both the membership and the social activities of the chapter have been formulated by the Executive Board for the school year of 1935-36.

The majority of the graduate sorors are now engaged in the practice of law. Several have entered the field of politics and hold minor political positions at the present time.

The sorority has twice received honorary mention when the scholarship cup award was made.

The social activities of the chapter are centered about the annual dinner and dance sponsored by the Grand Council which, this year, was held at the Hotel Lexington.

The sorority's new pledgee is Frances Rosenthal. Mildred Satler is the soror who is scheduled to be graduated this year.

SINCE 1928, when Omega Phi first became a factor in the scholastic life of Brooklyn Law School, until the present, the years have been a rapid succession of unforgettable memories. Casual acquaintances have become lifelong friends in the camaraderie of teas, theater parties and social meetings.

October rush parties at the Barbizon Plaza and the Bossert Hotel were held, and in January a formal induction was held at the Hotel Granada. Later, a dance was held on the Yacht Deck of the Barbizon Plaza where members of the nine other chapters of Omega Phi renewed friendships with the girls of Delta Chapter.

During the year five new members were added; Ida Provenzano, Julia Perles, Mrs. Muriel Goldberg, Florence Shapiro and Mildred Greif. The sorority also had its share of marriages and engagements to enliven the usual round of meetings and parties. With such a pleasant year behind us, we are anticipating an eventful future.

TAU Upsilon DELTA SORORITY is a purely legal organization having chapters in various law schools throughout the country including, in addition to Brooklyn Law School, St. John's School of Law, Portia Law School in Boston, New York Law School and law schools in New Jersey and California.

Each year the sorority holds a week-end convention to provide an opportunity for the members to meet each other and to dwell upon plans for the following year. The convention dinner dance this year was held February 22, at the St. Moritz Hotel, in New York.

Subsequently, a Grand Council meeting and Rush was held at the Continental Club, as a result of which Estelle Wasserman, of the Class of 1937, was added to this chapter.

APPRECIATION

EAGERNESS to serve has been the outstanding characteristic of all who assisted in the preparation of this book. Because of the limited time at the disposal of the Editorial Board, a great deal of help was required from extraneous sources. To those who so materially aided our efforts sincerest thanks is extended:

To Vice Dean Hagendorn, for his untiring assistance and his time;

To the administrative staff of the Law School, for its genuine cooperation;

To Mr. Reuss of Scientific Engraving Company, for his courteous and prompt attention to every request;

To Mr. Hayward of the F. Weidner Printing & Publishing Company, for his technical advice and physical efforts;

To Arthur Studios, for their thorough craftsmanship; and

To all others who, by their willingness to work, made possible the 1935 Chancellor.
